Edited by Alain Faole, distinguished professor of entrepreneurship and director of the Entrepreneurship Research Center, EMLYON Business School, Ecully, France and Dana T. Redford, president, forum for entrepreneurship education in Portugal, UCP-Porto, Portugal, this practical handbook provides a lens through which to look at entrepreneurial strategy for higher education institutions, as it becomes increasingly necessary for universities to change their strategies, culture and practices and become more necessary. Is the idea of an enterprising university a myth or a reality? Is the university model able to adapt to newly developed trends and a more complex professional world? And what is the impact of entrepreneurship in education? Through extensive research and case studies from some of the leading entrepreneurial thinkers around the world, Ellen Faole and Dana Radford answer these questions and raise further issues for debate. As a means of promoting graduate entrepreneurship, special attention is paid to developing university strategy, public policy and start-up support. Each contribution explores various approaches related to the concept of entrepreneurial university and its role in encouraging economic development through business and cooperative relations with the government. As a comprehensive study of the Entrepreneurship University, this handbook will prove invaluable to business and entrepreneurship students and academics, as well as university administrators, researchers and others interested in developing the university.
